

Follow us

A HIKING GUIDE

Be Prepared For The Mountains And Beyond!

scroll down ↓

01

GET STARTED

What level of hiker are you?

Determining what level of hiker you are can be an important tool when planning future hikes. This hiking level guide will help you plan hikes according to different hike ratings set by various websites like All Trails and Modern Hiker. What type of hiker are you – novice, moderate, advanced moderate, expert, or expert backpacker?

read more →

02

HIKING ESSENTIALS

Picking the right hiking gear!

The nice thing about beginning hiking is that you don't really need any special gear, you can probably get away with things you already have. Let's start with clothing. A typical mistake hiking beginners make is wearing jeans and regular clothes, which will get heavy and chafe wif they get sweaty or wet.

read more →

03

WHERE YOU GO IS THE KEY

Understand your map & timing

To start, print out the hiking guide and map. If it's raining, throw them in a Zip-Lock bag. Read over the guide, study the map, and have a good idea of what to expect. I like to know what my next landmark is as I hike. For example, I'll read the guide and know that say, in a mile, I make a right turn at the junction..

read more →

MNTN

Get out there & discover your next slope, mountain & destination!

More on The Blog

About MNTN
Contributors & Writers
Contact Us
Privacy Policy

More on MNTN

The Team
Jobs
Press